Done enough damage to my soul back down you've won time and time again no one left to hold up that wall where the last brick has fallen where I call my home stand naked before you but you can't take away what you stripped away before leave me alone with my insane find what's left of me void of any emotion at all you took my love my compassion my dignity I can make you feel I will slice the throat of society I thirst for flowing life if it will help me find my place so help me I'll rip out your heart vengeance come to me done unto you how dare you further yourself through my disillusion
