You had your chance
I wont be here when you really need me
I'll be gone

Hold on, please,
Would you, darling?
I can't eat, I just wander

And if you follow along my children won't listen to me
I want to believe that I will never belong
To the curves you hide behind, and in between

Eels and cold baths
If you belong, then you're property
If you belong

Caught in a reef, I dreamt you were sorry
You called back to me,
You called me an angel
I'll be good, without an angle

You had your chance
I wont be here when you really need me
I'll be gone.
