know secrets about you, that's true, I do
I know something about you, you know I do
Darkness, laughter, and heartache, that's what we see
Can't stop thinking about you, but now, I am free

Don't want to build on something old
Something crumbled, something gold
I can't just throw away these feelings
But what has been is not to come again

I will never forget you; you know that's true
I will never regret you, it's true for you too
Fading pictures of lovers, it's all in me
You and I were too perfect to match in life

Don't want to build on something old
Something crumbled, something gold
I can't just throw away these feelings
But what has been is not to come (once again)
