it was getting late, I was on my own in a little bar just coming down when I glanced across, and I saw her face in a flash of time everything had turned around she said what's your name, with a lovely smile like she's known me all of my life in a little while, we were touching hands and then suddenly she was saying goodbye

Chorus:

a little in love, I'm just a little in love gotta find her once again
'cos I don't want this to end gonna search the city for that pretty girl who just might be just a little in love like me now I'm sitting here, sipping on my beer like a kid again watching that door been a long longtime, since I felt this way and I must admit, everyday I want her more

Chorus:

who just might be just a little in love like me
