The house where I was born
Still stands for who I am
Every stone laid
Is a bridge made to my past

The house where I grew tall towers over me
Shadows bring everything back in soft light
I wouldn't change yesterday, not in my life
And so I live in a house of no regrets

There are many rooms inside my head
Corridors that wind through time, never end
They are journeys meant to be

Every house is part of me

The house where I found love lingers
Sends me shivers
Like the first time
Stairways I climb to the heights

The house where I grow old will be free of ghosts
From what I've done, I won't run, come the dark night
I wouldn't change yesterday, not in my life
The years show, I've lived in a house of no regrets
