How can we conduct Symphonies of our destruction Without having a clue How to interpret the darkest notes

There is no need to feel so depraved A spotless disease is what I am All of those fools that I have enslaved Were so long ago already damned

There is no need to be so engaged The master of the stash is what I am All this distress that I have engraved Is forming the path that I defend

Come with me, acquire the key To unlock forbidden doors Come with me, be finally free The incentive, your decree

There is no need to feel so alone When your white guide knocks you at the door Don't you disappoint her, no don't you dare She'll destroy you in the quick, to the bone

Come with me, on your knees The celebration ends Come with me, never flee Save me from this
