I wake up early
It got a little late last night
I put on some coffee
I try to make your morning right

But you don't wanna wake up
Nothing to look forward to
Well, I feed the cat and
I try to figure out what to do

When I see your sorrow, I'm sorry with you
When I hear you crying, my heart breaks
When I see your sorrow, I'm sorry with you
When I hear you crying, my heart breaks

I can hear you talking
On the other side of the room
Your voice filled with anger
And some times filled with gloom

I wanna walk into your room and
Show my love
I wish that I could help you
But I need help from above

When I see your sorrow, I'm sorry with you
When I hear you crying, my heart breaks
When I see your sorrow, I'm sorry with you
When I hear you crying, my heart breaks
My heart breaks

Well I never was the one
Who thought love would be real easy
But now it seems to hard

And when I try to recall all the things
I thought that I could give you
All I end up with is the same old song
The same old song

I try to make you better

I try to pick you up one more time
I try to fight the feeling
That it could be me who's making you walk that line
Heaven forbid, heaven forbid
I need to get this feeling right out of my mind

When I see your sorrow, I'm sorry with you
When I hear you crying, my heart breaks
When I see your sorrow, I'm sorry with you
When I hear you crying, my heart breaks
My heart breaks
My heart breaks
My heart breaks
