I know it's a cliché
When they say we were doomed before we could start
We were making no headway
But cold logic won't bring back the sound of your heart

It's probably too late now, so I won't try to taste it everything that I love, I manage to waste it

Wish I could help you to hate me
You slice the wound and I'll pour in the salt
Alcohol makes the pain stay
But either way it's everybody's fault
And now when it rains, the trees send no comfort
I'll try to forget that everything's my fault
And I'll never call, it's such a mean distance
What once was before, I guess is now finished

I'm helping you hate me
