

Ernest Tubb

"Don't Trade Your Old Fashioned Sweetheart"

Visit "Don't Trade Your Old Fashioned Sweetheart" on MotoLyrics.com

Take away the bright lights and music take away the power and pain
And you'll find that a honky tonk angel can't compare with your home lovin' saint She's just another woman who'll never make a home She's had sweethearts before you she'll have others when you're gone Don't trade one who loves you for the bright lights that gleam
Don't trade your old fashioned sweetheart for a honky tonk queen
[guitar]
She'll lie and she'll cry on your shoulder and she'll speak of a broken romance She'll say that things might have been different take pitty but don't take a chance Don't take a cheap imitation when you have a real pearl

Don't take this hard hearted woman for your old fashioned girl
Don't trade one who loves you for the bright lights that
gleam
Don't trade your old fashioned sweetheart for a honky
tonk queen

Visit Ernest Tubb page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.