to look further and to get lost in yourself the light that revives
and that gathers the reflections high azure plain open up higher my thoughts range over and I notice that everything around me is music

music is
the regular dance of all your breaths on me the party of your eyes you almost smile at me you and the sound of your lips you, always more the harmony attained together I'll listen to you because you are music for me

I still hear the voices of the street where I was born my mother who called me so many times but the scream of liberty was louder and under the sun that lights the courtyards I see the children's dusty runs that by playing don't make it stop I still hear singing in dialect the lullabies of rain on the roof for me this everything this sweet appreciation is music to remember it's inside me... it's part of me...
it runs with me...
it's music

your friend who talks to you when you feel lonely

you can always find a hand
it's music... to conserve
to save together with you

the more we are, the more a choir in universal language advances it says they also made a hole in the skin of the sky you can hear it it's the howl of the stars mentality might change in people's heads that listen but don't hear before the silence falls down on everything the big silence

after exploded air because one cannot imagine a world without music
even the smallest one,
is a beating of life and love that is music
