"Mind Games"

I can feel, how do you know
I can stand, I will make you fall
There is a way, they'll all stare and laugh at you I will pray, maybe then you'll realize

That: when you wake up and you feel it You find that there's nowhere to run What's the matter, do you have a headache where your mind used to be Come on now, it's not like you, it seems you're out of control Think fast, you lack soul kid, now it's a mind game, me and you

You are here, when did you realize I will fight, what happened all this time

I get the impression here that you don't understand
I have to tell you son this game will never end
And all you'll see someday is an old man asking why Why he never found himself, what happened to his life

And then you will wake up and feel it, it's a mind game You'll pay, you'll regret this, forget it now, you'll never get it

There is no need here now to make you understand A little boy, a frightened child are trapped within this man
I will talk about this game for a lifetime to come And everyone will think of you when they think of giving up

When they do, I'll be there playing the game that I played with you Let me tell you who I am, I am your fears, I am your nightmare, I am you

Saddened eyes and broken dreams, something's inside my bottle
All the things that make me the things that forced the night on

All this time I have listened to you, I played the game, I've lived it Get out your soul-sucking sacrifice, I can't take it one more minute
Yes here it comes again another fact on fiction I'm another man in another life, the world of no restrictions
Saddened eyes and broken dreams, something's
inside my bottle
All the things that made me proud, the things that forced the night on

There is a way, yes I know
