if we take road tonight will it lead us no further than a wasted self-indulgent dream i can feel reality slipping from my senses what's best is no direction impulsive abandon of fear this wind is biting but we'll keep driving winding through chances and i can't see what's up ahead but i don't care
we wait for these moments
but are we enough to keep ourselves believing? don't let it go
don't let this go if we take this road tonight will we finally discover all that we've been missing our lives are changing so fast blurring past the windshield watch as the night falls down around us what's there lose as long as these pieces keep falling into place
but are we enough to keep ourselves to believing? if these keep falling
