This night deceives, it screams of selfless longing.
Now balancing our hearts on seas these waves once still now crashing.

I've waited so long to tell you this feeling
sweeps through my brain is constant repeating.
You want to be my everything
but you don't know where to begin, let me begin.

This day is lost, pinned down and pressed on pages.
You recognize my subtle touch.

A thousand words when saying nothing.

I've waited so long to tell you this feeling
sweeps through my brain is constant repeating.
I would give my life to you wrapped in silhouettes and dreams.

I open my eyes to see you waiting for me.
Once so vulnerable these casts are shattered down,
for you are here with me, with me.
