No derivatives on concrete lean
Sounding level with wonderment
The course does glean
A Trojan horse

Wide fear
Life forcing each other to be
Nothing, why, how
We be alive today in the here and now

Look into my eyes clear the air
Ask if anyone about Darfur does care
When we talk into the breeze
See what is easy
In our lives all we care about
Is but one percent of the actuality
Of what being a human does mean to me

Step right up
Let's fill the whole
In life's wheel spoke birth
For only condiments we race
We tear the reason apart like lace

Look into my eyes see the care
In my bloodshot baby blues stare
It lingers to apple knew apropos
Do we care to know about our lives
When we attempt to go
Either not fast or slower than fucking slow
Each of us can do what we have to
For everyone
