Born in 1963

In the shadow of Kennedy

I'm still a kid when the levee breaks

Man, oh man, that's all it takes

And I'm on my way

Boy, you're not supposed to sing the blues

Where you come from

If you walk across those railroad tracks

Son, you're on your own

But all I know is what I feel, and it can't be wrong

Boy, you're not supposed to sing the blues

Where you come from

Where you come from

It's just not done

Back in black and I'm 17

I've been told, son, let it be

I got these lines upon my face now

A room at the heartbreak hotel

Yeah yeah

Oh well, oh well

Ah yeah

Boy, you're not supposed to sing the blues

Where you come from

If you walk across those railroad tracks

Son, you're on your own

All I know is what I feel, and it can't be wrong

Boy, you're not supposed to sing the blues

Where you come from

Where you come from

It's just not done

Oh well, oh well

Alright

Boy, you're not supposed to sing the blues
Where you come from

If you walk across those railroad tracks
Son, youâ€™re on your own
But all I know is what I feel, and it canâ€™t be wrong
Boy, you're not supposed to sing the blues

Where you come from

Where you come from
Itâ€™s just not done
