So passive, not reacting its fear, its need to feel safe about it So anxious to feel the guilt the best blackmail in the worlds history

I have my will against all your creations, keep your fingers out of my explanations I've got my own hell no heaven can change While angels one by one burn and get lost

Like animals we lip the ground, down

Into the old ages slime, where hopes die and all our fears become just one big lie

Break the silence were filled with cause everyone can hear you scream So every single sigh should rise like a missile up to smash your heaven down

While we stand below asking what its for Whispering the screams like wind thru the trees
