something's come over me and I need some answers my capulet, it seems, is just a step away we walk, we walk, we walk this darkened road I can't see, I can't see at all this joke is getting older every single day

something's come over me

no place I'd rather be what are the chances?
it's right in front of me but still a step away we walk, we walk, we walk this weary road I can't move, I can't move at all this joke is getting older every single day

I've heard quite enough

forget, forget it all
starting all over again
regret has mounted tall
over and over again
is this our final call?
over and over

you can't take it from me with softly spoken lies one more mistake may end up costing you your life

something's come over me
