Here we go

I walk so freely among the damned at time it seems we're hand and hand the same weakness, it pumps through my veins which of our virtues brought us here? was it laziness? was it fear? the same desire to see another's pain you hold me down (hold me down) making sure I still believe (make sure that I still believe) no common ground (common ground) no foundation to play my feet (taking this one thing from me) so watch me drown with only the rocks underneath hold me down, hold me down

hold me down, hold me down watch me drown

when a new world is just as likely as the old the one that you found cruel the one that left us so cold come on, come on we'll make it through this open your eyes and see that we are halfway home we're going home

we're going home, going home
