The sun is sinking, slipping out of view
It's only leaving to rise somewhere new
The party's ending, the crowd has left the room
And I'm here spending the last dance with you

And as time weaves its path
Through the seasons of our lives
We sit and watch the years go past
Alone together you and I
And if one day the time may come
That we must go separate ways
And our held hands come undone,
And one must go and one must stay

Well I don't know the future, I don't know the score
But somehow I'm sure we will meet again, we will meet again
Like the golden summer follows on from spring
We will find each other, we will meet again, we will meet again

As we float suspended, the room just spins around
This song has ended but I still hear the sound My hands are trembling, there's a shiver down my spine
Cause I'm stripped of all I've been hiding behind

And as time weaves is its path
Through the seasons of our lives
We sit and watch the years go past
Alone together you and I
And if one day the time may come
That we must go separate ways
And our held hands come undone,
And one must go and one must stay

Well I don't know the future, I don't know the score
But somehow I'm sure we will meet again, we will meet
again
Like the golden summer follows on from spring

meet again

There will be dancing, there will be singing
All the bells will ring when we meet again, when we
meet again
There will be no shadow, there will be no pain
There will be no sorrow when we meet again, when we
meet again
We will meet again, we will meet again
We will meet again, we will meet again
