Love is a precious word
that's sometimes overused
And as I find you at your worst I refuse to give up on you
You let your pride get the best of you
This life seems so simple, simple and plain But there's more to this Even if you do sell yourself out

Your reflection, reflects that of someone You swore you never knew, you swore you never knew Please take this to heart, Please take this to heart

For I don't have addictions what would my words mean to you, to you

Would they fall on your deaf conscience?
A perfect image is not to be perceived

Love is a precious word
that is sometimes overused
Love is a precious word
that's sometimes overused
Love is a precious word
and I refuse to give up on you

Take from this and I hope it inspires change
The guns pointed what is your choice now
There are times when, we examine ourselves Salvation is what you make of it
