Blues Traveler
"Optimistic Thought"

Visit "Optimistic Thought" on MotoLyrics.com

When she wakes it seems so shady
She remembers she's a lady
Ah, but could it be that maybe
She was having lots of fun

She sees she's wearing leather
In her navel there's a feather
She just has to crack a smile
And close her eyes, her prayer begun

She says, life I embrace you
I shall honor and disgrace you
Please forgive if I replace you
You see I'm going through some pain

But now I see clearly
And the dawn is coming nearly
And though I'm human and it's early
I swear I'll never forget again

An explorer he went wanderin'
To satisfy his ponderin'
Basically meanderin'
Unsure of what he'd find

Braving any danger
But to his family he's a stranger
And from time to time he turns around
And this runs through his mind

He says, life I embrace you
I shall honor and disgrace you
Please forgive if I replace you
You see I'm going through some pain

But now I see clearly
And the dawn is coming nearly
And though I'm human and it's early
I swear I'll never forget again

There's a multitude of story
Some is clean and some is gory

But there is no need to worry
If you're sold or if you're bought

We're just spinning on some granite
That we like to call a planet
And if you need to contemplate
Well, here's an optimistic thought

Life I embrace you
I shall honor and disgrace you
Please forgive if I replace you
You see I'm going through some pain

But now I see clearly
And the dawn is coming nearly
And though I'm human and it's early
I swear I'll never forget again

Oh, life I embrace you
I shall honor and disgrace you
Please forgive if I replace you
You see I'm going through some pain

But now I see clearly
And the dawn is coming nearly
And though I'm human and it's early
I swear I'll never forget again
I swear I'll never forget again