I remember hearing a story
About a girl who wanted to fly
Something about dreams as fragile a bubbles
Well perhaps it won't apply
It seems she'd flap her arms everyday and every night
As hard and as long as she could
She knew her dream needed all the love she could give it
For it to do her any good

One night her heart spoke in a dream
It told her if you really love this believe, because...

It takes the Guiltiest of eyes
To condemn the man who dies
It takes a thousand of his best spies
To expose as many lies
It could take weeks for me to say
How It'll take forever to go away
And it takes everything you have
... to be in love

Well across the street there lived a little boy
Sad disfigured child with two humps on his back
Pitiful autistic little mess in a wheelchair
The other kids all named him "Lack"
But Lack started to take interest
In that girl across the way
He'd watch in amazement from his window
While she flapped her arms
And that's how they'd spend their days

She'd soon inspire him to stand
That girl everyone called featherhead
Made him clearly understand That...

It takes the Guiltiest of eyes
To condemn the man who dies
It takes a thousand of his best spies
To expose as many lies

It could take weeks for me to say
How It'll take forever to go away
And it takes everything you have
... to be in love

Soon Lack could walk and talk and hide his humps
And people realized how clever he could be Feather still dreaming about the skies
Unaware of how in love Lack was with she
One day she quit flapping her arms at last Convinced that she'd accomplished nothing at all
When Lack heard this he ran, not walked over to her house

And he begged her, yes he begged her not to let Rome fall
He said everything I am now is for and because of you
You see I understand your secrets and I swear to God
it's all true

It takes the Guiltiest of eyes
To condemn the man who dies
It takes a thousand of his best spies
To finally realize
That it takes the strength of Sampson's hair
To enter if you dare
And it takes Icarus in flight
To provoke the gods to fight
It could take weeks for me to say
How It'll take forever to go away
And it takes everything you have
... to be in love

Well time wears on, and soon featherhead and Lack had to grow up
Feather didn't quit and would be finishing school soon
She works for NASA exploring space
Flying regularly to Jupiter's 7th moon
Lack defying all law of gravity and otherwise, flew away
You see those lumps on his back grew into great big gossamer wings
He changed his name to Luck because he had so much
He flies where he's needed, doing all sorts of nifty and amazing
things

From time to time they meet up in the sky to celebrate
Tax dollars and miracles can let the weirdest people date

But it takes the guiltiest of eyes
To condemn the man who dies
It takes a thousand of his best spies
To finally realize
It could take weeks for me to say
How It'll take forever to go away
And it takes everything you have
... to be in love
