i can tell you're listening to my summoning by the shaking of the air by the colds burning stare by the howling of the moon that says you went to soon by the tremors that i feel by my breat that you steal. coming in loud and clear i can tell that you are here you're coming in loud and clear. so they laid you down to rest but not to me i've done my best to bring you back again in time so once again you will be mine and from the darkness of this room i will return unto your tomb and i'll close ourselves within so we may begin again. your apparition has reconfirmed my superstition. there's that knocking at the door yes i've heard that one before speaking in undusted tongue say i always was the one choke me on your arid breath plunge me back into your death now i have you next to me i can fell your undead heart beating.
