[musick - Derrel Houdashelt, Matt Harvey; lyrixxx - Matt Harvey]

Feverishly savouring my sordid, charnel chore, The rib cage and sternum I
Frenziedly bore, Skin flayed and stripped as your torso is wrecked, A
Grotesquely wrenched cavity now lays bare to dissect...
A granular amorphous
Mass is all that remains, Of the peritoneum which enshrouds the rotted
Stomach, Tubucular enlargements extend across the abdomen, The gnarled cheese
Like clumps I now hack... Necrotic tissue converted to casein, Omental bursa
Caked and dried, My dissection kit now quite bedaubed, As I further sunder
Your rotted insides... Blanketing the organs that once facilitated digestion, Transversing the dead bowels like an apron over the intestine... A dried Crepitated mound of viscera, Innards desiccated during caseation, I gouge and Excoriate my way through the guts, Now ripped and mangled during Desecration... The disfigured gut now totally wasted, I regard the disinterred
Stiff with a smirk, Decomposed, dissected and dismembered, I resplendently
Admire my handiwork...
