I can never take part in life
Black snakes have tied me
A chance to break free from
The sorrows that weighs me down
Will I never see, will I never find

The voice of the deep, lives here inside
And pours out in careless ways
Black beats, the only joy
Which slips through my broken gates

Open the door slightly
To your innermost chamber
Open it for me
Let me fill every gap

I open the dam, I let the water stream in Seeded water grows fast to my grounds
The fog casts a shadow over the light, When will it disappear
Jesus' invitation
Might be the answer to that

Remember that it was not me
Who stole that peacefully shining
Light in there

A complete surrender
Lets the Lord's holiness
Fill my inmost
And the Holy Spirit's power renew
My soul, my mind
To the Lord I'm lifted up
