Pull back the curtains
Let the sunlight stream in
And let it light up your eyes
And lay its warmth upon your skin
Come over here
Just lay for a while let's do nothing
And let's do it with style
So run where you should be now tomorrow
So run where you should be now tomorrow
I could bring you some tea
And something to eat
Then we'll step over the bills
And into the street
And walk down the road
Or drive to the Sea
We'll do what you want
Please do it with me
So run where you should be now tomorrow
So run where you should be now tomorrow

I could call up your work
And say you're not well enough to go
As long as we're both discreet
No I really don't think that they're both discreet
No I really don't think that they will ever know
There's no work for me
And the world stops turning when you're not here
And it's good that your're free
You say I'm your man
Well now he needs you near
So run where you should be now tomorrow
So run where you should be now tomorrow
Can't face you getting up and leaving today
Is there anyway I'll convince you to stay
Today...
Let's cancel today
