"Dark Room"

Sleep does not exist at all, my efforts are in vain I strike a match to light a smoke, a whisper speaks my name Moonlight penetrates the shade, there's an image up on the wall
What has entered by blackened world, a whisper makes it's call
When you finally wake up, your memory won't recall What's about to happen in this dark room, you will arise and that is all Thinking that it was just a thought, a trick I played on me
I laugh aloud but to myself, I could have sworn that I just screamed my head off Desperation gets me out, I gotta get some sleep Food, the late show never help, you don't even bother counting sheep
Back into my dark room where my thoughts all reign supreme
After my fourth cigarette that whisper's getting mean Dead weight lies beside me, so I turn the other way
"Your bed holds not security"
I heard the whisper say.
