"Burned"

Pick a side, you made your mind up long ago
The past is dead, but in your head it's hard to let it go
Excuses made no longer will define you (define you)
Empty threats have hung you once again
With open eyes you tranquilize your confidence
Room is black no looking back, the cost of self expense
Step away and look inside your sickness (sickness)
And realize you're all alone

When the world that you created
Makes you fall face down and meet your bitter end
And you're sifting through the wreckage
You can build it up or burn it down again

Lined up all your sins and then you shot them one by one
You sacrificed your common sense, it's over said and done
Deception and disaster always find you (find you)
And leave you dying all alone

In the darkest shadow, will you find your way
Is there hope or are you stuck here in this World that you created, when you fall face down and meet your bitter end
And you're sifting through the wreckage
You can build it up or burn it down again
