I once had a girl
She thought she had the world
And she thinks she's going to make it to Broadway

Her mouth's a loaded gun
And I had enough
And she thinks she's going to make it her own way

And oh no, nobody's good enough
To live in her world sharing the spotlight

And I know the world's a fantasy,
A fiction-based metaphysical twilight

Did you know, you were a speeding truck
With your devil eyes, as the headlights
And I'm dry on things to sing about

There's nothing left to say except,
Lying's for liars and
Loving's for lovers
Dancing's just not, oh
Dancing's just not for you

Did you hear, did you hear the news?
Dancing's just not, no
Dancing's just not for you

She took my heart with ease, just like a gentle breeze
That seemed to say that she would love me forever

The breeze turned in to wind, that would begin the end
And start a storm I didn't know how to weather

And oh no,

Now she's a hurricane,
And there's no man on earth that could tame her

And it's the way she spins must be some kind of sin

And oh no, the world cannot restrain her

Did you know, you were a speeding truck
With your devil eyes, as the headlights
And I'm dry on things to sing about

Lying's for liars and
Loving's for lovers
Dancing's just not, oh
Dancing's just not for you

Did you hear, did you hear the news?

Dancing's just not, no
Dancing's just not for you.

She's not gonna back down no
She'll never surrender
She's not gonna let go

She never cared for me, just wanted to be seen
She crushed my soul before she shattered my bones

What happened to that girl who thought she had the world
She did more damage than she'll ever know

So I'll blow up this piano...

Did you know you were a speeding truck
With your devil eyes as the headlights
And I'm dry on things to sing about

Lying's for liars and
Loving's for lovers
Dancing's just not, oh
Dancing's just not for you

Did you hear, did you hear the news?
Dancing's just not, dancing's just not,
Dancing's just not for you.
