Back before you met me.

Life was out to get me

but i was too fast to jump too high to hit the ground.

Now I'm at your mercy...

Common sense deserts me
Every time and everywhere you choose to come around.

You start to dig.

I start to build.

It's almost like some kind of wish against my will.

You take me under

You take me under

You take me under and you pull me down again

You take me under

You take me under

And just when I start to breathe you pull me down again.

Out of self assurance

How can I endure this

When you seem so pleased affecting me all by yourself?

There's this restless kind of feeling

I'm not waving girl I'm sinking and its almost like this heavens on the border line of hell.

You take me under

You take me under

You take me under and I don't know where I am

You take me under

You take me under

And just when I start to breath you pull me down again.

I keep drowning in your same old drama and it gets boring...and you keep pulling...pulling me under.

I keep drowning in your same old drama and it gets boring but you keep pulling

You take me under

You take me under

You take me under and I don't know where I am

You take me under

You take me under

And just when I start to breath you pull me down again

(YEAH!!!!!!!)
