I trusted you with all my heart, but you cut the rope and left before the fallout. My wish came true, and as I imagined, you will never make it through the year.

Where did we go wrong? Where do our lives really belong? How can this be happening to me? I never thought I'd live to see the day.

The static on the radio is fading much like our history, so don't say you're missing me, because I don't want to think about how much I'll miss these days. So let's hope they never end.

Regardless of accusations, I'm telling you I'd never let you down. And here we are, a dying breed. You rarely find a kid like me. I'm doing something with my life and I'll never give up.

Where did we go wrong? We played the right cards all along? How can this be happening to me? I never thought I'd live to see the day.
