"Our Last Goodbye"

So we begin to say goodbye to you
These are the tears that we have shed for you
The smiles that we've shared will linger in our heads...

And you will never be forgotten
Along the cold street lights of autumn

And your memories won't fade away
They're set in stone, where words convey
That our hearts will beat to the lullaby of eternal sleep Where our eyes will be shut tight and picture you and bring you back to life

And you will never be forgotten
Along the cold street lights of autumn
And your memories won't fade away
They're set in stone, where words convey
And we know that you are gone, but we will still carry on

We'll light the candle for you now and hold it high above the crowd
To shed your light upon the world
To shed your light upon the world
Upon the world
