If you've given up, would help you out if you could know

That there's more in store if you look the other way
If you get it all, would you ever hope for something more?

Would it make you whole with half a life ahead?

Before you give it away, you gotta take a little back
And find another way

Before you go it alone, you gotta learn to let to let it go
Face another day

If it's getting old, are you better off here than before?

If you can't ignore when you look the other way

So just let it go, take a look around and you will know

That there's something more, when there's half a life ahead

Before you give it away, you gotta take a little back
And find another way

Before you go it alone, you gotta learn to let to let it go
Face another day

Even after all that's said and done you worry

Even those the odds look good you still look down

Even after all that's said and done you worry

Even those the odds look good you still look down

Before you give it away, take it back

Before you give it away, take it back

Before you give it away, take it back

Before you give it away, take it back
