You needed more than I could give
And I gave you all that I could spare
You've taken everything that I'm worth
You made me question all I knew

You won't remember, why you came in the first place
You can try to forget her, but she came anyway
Can't understand her, so you cant make it better
You should try to forget her, if she could do the same

Regretting all I cannot change
I can't conceive my own complaints
I swear my voice has not been heard
But I led her into my dark world
