In a vacant disaster i look around and watch the flames all these dismembered faces, can't even conjure up their names they've all been mistreated, and they've all learned how to hate the destiny is certain, i guess we'll leave it up to fate

i can't find it in my way to see through another day when all we build just burns to ashes and all we love will slowly pass us there's a sent on the street and it's knocking at your door if it were hell it would be better but it's somehow even more we're on this one way road we've been there for too long we're destined for destruction how can this prophecy be wrong

and all we love will slowly pass us

can't you see we've lost control the devil's got this world in a death-roll yeah, here we go right, the pain is slow how, can't you see this, ain't just me
