

Farewell "Stay Pretty"

Well you've been living a lie by your own admission My patience has been hard enough to fake, and the secrets
You save for your new physician are leaving me with one ear on the safe The holes in your story increase suspicion - your witnesses have All been on the take, and we can give it a gamble under one condition
You'll have to take your foot off the, foot off the break - so give up
And give in, and start over again, but be honest cause you're all I need It's pathetic, why can't we get it straight? well you've been compromised
By your new position - they're looking up your skirt for heavens sake, and Your army of fakes that refuse to listen will end up in designer shallow graves

It's true the torture and tears have become tradition, but the something On the other side is what takes the cake - and the surplus of uppers and Apparitions are the only things that keep me up, keep me awake
So stay up and stay in, yeah, I'll say it again - look beyond this,
There's a big picture that you're missing, framed by the first mistake
By the bags under your eyes I can see that you've packed for the week,
So hang up this shit for the neighbors to see Writing won't save the world,
So you best stay pretty girl
