it's 3 o'clock in the morning and he's still awake flipping through the photographs trying not to break its been almost a year now since the last time he saw her face and most nights he gets through the fight and now's not the case and he tries, how hard he tries to erase her from his mind
when he would give anything, he'd give anything

when love won't let you leave it's like sleeping with the lights left on you're laying up all night praying the strength you need to move on
when love won't let you leave it's a feeling that you can't describe knowing that you lost the one thing that ever made sense in your life

the funny thing about life is it takes you by surprise one day you're on the bottom the next on in the sky so when she told him she was coming home it blew his
mind
this time he swore he wouldn't lose her, he would get it right and he tried, how hard he tried to keep her satisfied

it's like moving back to where you grew up even though you've been away so long everything's familiar enough
(?)
you change what you know needs changing you can get it right the second time around

he screams jesus can you hear me these years went by too fast so can you (?) before you take her she's my only love, she's all that i have

and kneeling there stroking her hair and trying not to break the doctor says it won't be long now it's been a difficult climb he brings the kids in from the waiting room to kiss mama one more time and he tries, how hard he tries to accept the fact she's dying

the doctor's never right he's wrong you stay the whole night by her just waiting on a miracle to come
and he watched her as she closes her eyes begging god please don't take her please let me have one more night with her my wife
when love won't let you leave when love won't let you leave (yeah yeah)
