

Farside "Statues Of Snow"

Visit "Statues Of Snow" on MotoLyrics.com

You're carving a statue of snow and you're the only one who knows how You've got your own indecipherable language to use now You're bending the laws of science like bending bars of steel
But your arrogance lacks confidence and betrays the way you feel
The way you feel
Running through your hands

You've built a brand new wall, recycled from before you were born You're a noble, first-time trailblazer one path that's been well worn
So, what new ways to pout did you devise while skipping class? In the end, your actions are erased by the sands of the hourglass

The hourglass
Running through your hands

So hold on tight to what is sacred
And don't let go
Cherish everything that's precious
And don't let go
Running through your hands

Times are hard, but you're the one you must define Self-destruct or "let it shine"
Times are hard, but you're the one who's got to know, you're carving statues out of snow

You're not different, you're just like me
We're the same
You're not different, you're just like me
We're the same
And you're ok

Visit Farside page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.

