Hello, goodbye, I'm patiently waiting there's no reply Your words are few and far between. Answers short and your arguments weak
I tried to make this clear once you leave I disappear Along with all the memories that you are erasing of me
But if you turn and walk away and decide to leave today. Then I only have one request

Erase me from your pictures erase me from your world You'll be regretting this soon someday and you'll be calling me by Monday
So erase me from your future erase me from your past

You'll be regretting this soon someday and you'll be
calling me by Monday

No more last tries and not another reason why Sleepless nights and endless days. Still there's nothing left to say So pace around and scream out loud. Because you know this makes no sense
You know you're such a beautiful mess

Now you are running round in circles screaming catch me if you can
But I am running out of breath and I can't go through this again
