In time long past tomorrow
Sleeping in the castle of the black
In the Leland hills are the monster tracks of a giant

The darn of Autumn playing in the garden of the rising sun
The children they run in the yard of the giant
If he awakens, he will crush them in the earth
Fear of the children inherited at birth

Thunder clouds close the skies
He opened up his eyes, he's awakened
Hears the children in his paradise
You must leave this land forever more

Or live behind the iron doors of the darkest dungeon
So they left with the passing storm, the Gods were awakened
They will crush him in the earth
He is forsaken until he shares his worth

Kings, queens, pirates, giants
Castle walls and dungeon doors
Earthbound to your treasures

Sunken heart to the ocean floor
I will remember knocking
On the cold side of your door

Spring came soon to the outside world
But the North wind whirled through the castle halls
Children played in the outside sun
Frost giants stood there in the garden walls

A season's passed, he's locked in winter
He's filled with remorse
His frost bitten heart

Through a crack in the garden wall
Came a child with the gift of spring
The frost giants went away

The dawn of autumn came Into the garden of the rising sun
And we were done in the eyes of the giant

His heart was awakened
He was forgiven then
Always remembered
As a giant among men

Kings, queens, pirates, giants
Castle walls and dungeon doors
Earthbound to your treasures

Sunken heart to the ocean floor
I will remember knocking
On the cold side of your door
