its so cold in the shadow of distant lights and the chilling wind slows down our pace and tests our will still a voice whispers it will be over soon and we find the courage to climb the hill sometimes I lose sight of where im going fanned by a flame I cant remember but distant lights still burn bright and the road goes on forever year after year with renewed ambition we scale the walls to find theres nothing there still idle hands clutch the empty page with the passion of a desperate prayer

and here we are again

the doors close behind us and the road goes on and on
