I felt it in my gut
i felt it pull me from inside this is close enough to taste i hope they never stop this train and let me off silly dreams and innocence can really find a way to get under your skin it's under my skin and you can't belong to hopeless passions for too long before giving up the fight and moving on in a dream your heart swells and no one ever sees the pain inside these eyes is real (and those dreams meant everything to me) until i die

i can't put it down and walk away the window is a picture of the way we live we can try this one last time i'm sick of starting up again let the weak be left behind i'm done with starts that never end
