Got drunk on summer,
fallen lover,
teenage mother,
nothing's gonna hold her back again.

It's not science,
Nature's violence,
She's carrying a child she wants within.

It's just the way it is.
She wants to live,
It's just the way it is

'Cause you don't belong,
You're flash and blood and bone within,
But you don't belong.

Feel the temper,
Aching weather,
She remembered walking down under the iron bridge.

It felt quiet,
So quiet,
Lying down she shelters from the wind.

It's just the way it is.
She wants to live,
It's just the way it is.

'Cause you don't belong,
You're falsh and blood and bone within,
But you don't belong,
I'm reaching out so let us in,
'Cause you still belong.
