"Yesterday Went Too Soon"

Sitting in today, watching traffic buzzing by
And faces nosing in
A victim of regret, it glitters and it fades away
Like silver turning gray

Washed it all away
Waiting for this dream to end before it sucks me in

I'm climbing high
Up above the streets and rows of neon lights
I'm holding out my hand but I'm alone

Wish I could show you
Wish you could see through my eyes
Tomorrow shines through
But I'm missing yesterday

Crashing on the ground, the silence seems to suffocate
And bury me again
Waiting for a taste of happiness to lift me free
And carry me away

I'm climbing high
Up above the streets and rows of neon lights
I know it's just a dream but I'm alive

Wish I could show you
Wish you could see through my eyes
Tomorrow shines through
But I'm missing yesterday
I'm still missing yesterday

I'll wait
I'll wait for you tonight

Lost another week
Feeling like a leper in a world of vanity
It's killing me today
Addiction pulls you down, you know and she's the drug
I need

Wish I could show you
Wish you could see through my eyes
Tomorrow shines through
But I'm missing yesterday

Wish I could show you
Wish you could see through my eyes
Tomorrow shines through
But I'm missing yesterday
