We came to see you yesterday.
Your car was gone but that's okay.
We thought that she might bring you back,
in time but I don't know.
I can't figure it out and I don't understand.
You haven't got room and you don't give a damn.
You're cutting us out, you don't need anyone.
We thought that you might have needed someone.
Did you ever realise we were your friends?
Aah I never needed you to say goodbye.
For some reason I feel like making amends with you and I will try to tell you one more time.
What can I say, what can I try?
But I already worked out why.
You're all alone too scared to leave, you cut us out.
I can't say any lies, I can't give anymore
and this has happened twice before.
Just open your eyes, you can't do it again.
I know that you will, it'll hurt the same way.
I know you need it but it hurts too much to try.
You need a reason, you're too blind,
to know what's right.
Now that you've gone, we'll talk some day.
I know that you'll be the same one day.
Your pointed lies, your false disguise.
Your double standards.
