That bitter taste he felt carefully hide behind a mask
A tear once shed, no longer last
People grin, so many bad things there saying
There is no compassion in their eyes
The god theyÂ're preaching for wonÂ't even the score
A pessimistic messiah glazed in his eyes, and heÂ's turned upside down
HeÂ's felling blue

I know how he feels, i used to be with them
I know how it feels, you donÂ't have to hate them
HeÂ's so good, and he takes the blame
And deception is a lame existence
WhatÂ's happening when thereÂ's no more flame
When the question persists, he will nodd in vain
He will keep up instead

A limited life condition, seems to be others view
And they say that theyÂ're all wrong
A limited life condition seems to be others view
Â'cause once he told me before.
