(Lyrics, Music: Boyd, Leitch. McGee)

She'd dazed in the light of her new life tender hands to touch the ones who never see her floating up above the darkening clouds
closer to where she started, where it all will end She raises her beloved up from all the pain on the ground below he walks alone to see some lonely face again some way to carry on feel the spirit coming down, he'll now embrace (Refrain)

The quiet angel, your footsteps become my own
Can you see me?

How can I walk these quiet streets alone?
Brother you've taken a different path from me He speaks no longer of the days passed by Mother once said, "look over your shoulder not quick enough my son, he was standing right there" (Refrain)

The spirits remains in a question of old
But the belief keeps strong within our soul
She'd dazed in the light of her new life
tender hands to touch the ones who never see her
floating up above the darkening clouds
closer to where she started, where it all will end
(Refrain)

No one can see you from where we stand Quiet angel
Floating down, I see you've come to talk with me again
My friend, when will I see you again?
