"Divided By The Shore"

In the diner there's a rumour and it claims your name
And you used to get along well it's the same feeling
All the answers, when you danced they moved you around
Like a touch you never felt in this town

Overnight I met important founders
They created all the wires around us
And it's hard to put them down on someone
Do they still know we're divided by the shore?

In the lobby there's a suitcase and it wears your name
And you used to get along, well is it worth keeping?
All the buildings they are lined up but your arms fell Down
When you're moving through the land expect no ones hand

Overnight I met important founders
They created all the wires around us
And it's hard to put them down on someone
Do you still know we're divided by the shore?
