"When Actions Go Unchallenged"

How long until it breaks you down and eats away at you?

Trying hard to keep the peace and trying to hard to reach for you.

Sweep this to a corner and forget all your cries.

In three months I'll see you here and ruin both our nights.

So pretty please just leave this town and never show your face.

If it's a smile that you want you better look away from me.

Holding inside what I despise.

As you walk around this town free through the night.

Let me send examples out to you and all the others who smashed this truth.

That's why I'm here.
