I felt like I would belong
Even if this place was wrong
I couldn't let go
I wouldn't say no

I swore to myself I wouldn't change
Because I knew I couldn't be better
And I was scared, scared
That sometime this would all just vanish

And does it need to end?
Does it need to close it's curtain sometime?
I can't stop regretting for how long it took
To find something perfect and have it as mine

But I still thought I would belong
With things I couldn't forget of
What I truly love

It felt like things would go along
Even if they went through things wrong
I couldn't admit mistakes
I couldn't make things break

And can't I cross out these years?
Can't I stop all these clocks...

I swore to myself I couldn't change
Because I knew I couldn't be better
And I still cried, cried
That sometime this would all just end

But I still needed somewhere I belong
With things I couldn't live without
What I truly love
What I truly love

And does it need to end?
Does it need to close it's curtain sometime?
I can't stop regretting for how long it took
To find something perfect and have it as mine

Can't I cross out these years?
Can't I stop all the clocks?
Can't I scribble out this truth
Can't I make it all stop?
